Notes regarding use of composition:

- In the case of the relationship between the college and Faculty or students, composition is possible. The fact that students and faculty can change colleges would seem to argue against this, but composition is possible if we think in terms of the software objects rather than the people. However, since it is a bit strange to think of a college being composed of three different things, I have chosen to use composition just on the relationship to Departments.

- Composition is also possible on the Course/Section relationship, though I have chosen not to use it here, since a Course is more than a sum of sections.

- Composition is definitely not a possibility on the other relationships, because of multiplicities other than 1 or the ability to change, or both, and because - in some cases - it really makes no sense (e.g. a Faculty member is composed of advisees?)
